During the past week one could look in almost any direction and see either a hunter returning from the chase most generally with nothing more to show for his several hours hard work and tramp than a care worn look, or else you could see some belated friend just ready to start out to compete with the fate of his brother hunter.

STATE HAPPENINGS.

As Gathered From our Exchanges and Numerous Correspondents.

Much interest is being taken in the trial of Ira Adkins at Greensburg charged with shooting Kelly Parker, on September 16. On Saturday the court room was packed with citizens, including many women of Adams, to hear the evidence. The evidence of the State was, in substance, that the shooting took place at the residence of Mrs. Hazelrigg, who was entertaining young people at a party. Parker called to see Adkins, and Adkins ordered him away calling him hard names and saying he would put a hole through him. Adkins drew a revolver and fired at Parker the ball lodging in his groin. Parker was carried home and in a few weeks recovered, but still carries the ball where it lodged. Parker testified that he was unarmed at the time he was shot. The defense is making a hard fight and claiming that Adkins did the shooting in self-defense; that Parker put his hand to his pocket, and that Adkins had every reason to believe that he carried a revolver and was going to shoot. The defense has introduced a large number of witnesses to break down the character of Parker. Both are prominent young men of Adams and well connected. Parker is a son of Dr. Parker, of Adams, and since he recovered from the wound he has been attending the Cincinnati Medical College.

Mrs. Susan Etcherson, of Greencastle committed suicide yesterday morning at the residence of her son, Daniel Etcherson, nine miles north of that city. Deceased was sixty-one years old and been an inmate of the Central Insane Hospital for a number of years, going home during periods of better health. She shot herself in an outhouse with a thirty-eight-caliber revolver, holding it directly over her heart.

A Glow-Worm Cavern.

The greatest wonder of the antipodes is the celebrated glow-worm cavern, discovered in 1891 in the heart of the Tasmanian wilderness. The cavern or caverns (there appears to be a series of such caverns in the vicinity, each separate and distinct), are situated near the town of Southport, Tasmania, in a limestone bluff, about four miles from Idlay bay. The appearance of the main cavern is that of an underground river, the entire floor of the subterranean passage being covered with water about a foot and a half in depth. These wonderful Tasmanian caves are similar to all caverns found in limestone formation, with the exception that their roofs and sides literally shine with the light emitted by the millions of glow-worms which inhabit them.

Quite Luhn-Tum.

Mrs. Luhn, an Oshkosh woman, had arranged to have an addition built to her barn, but a neighbor threatened to enjoin her from building. She was equal to the occasion. During the night she hired twenty carpenters, and, with the aid of an electric light, the building was erected before daylight.

How Tennyson Asked for an Apple. Mr. Sherard adds that his father used to tell him that when he was a boy he once met Tennyson at a dinner party and that he was very frightened at his appearance. "Tennyson was at that time very yellow—almost yellow—and had long, black hair. At desert the poet bent across the table and addressed my father, in front of whom he placed a dish of fruit and said: 'Evoque me an apple.' 'I did not know what he wanted me to do,' said my father."—Westminster Gazette.
